Our speaker, Dr. Marshal Goldberg, practices periodontics and implant dentistry in Dallas. Dr. Goldberg is a Diplomate of the American Board of Periodontology. Dr. Goldberg is a seasoned veteran of the Southwest Dental Conference, having presented there on numerous occasions over the past ten years. In addition, he has presented at restorative and dental implant meetings in the United States and Canada.

Dr. Goldberg is active with organized dentistry, serving this year as President of the Dallas County Dental Society, and as a member of the Council on Constitution and Bylaws for the Texas Dental Association.

Dr. Goldberg is a graduate of Baylor College of Dentistry for both his undergraduate and graduate training. Following dental school, he participated in a two-year general practice residency New York City’s Beth Israel Hospital where he was Chief Resident. He practiced general dentistry for 5 years before specializing in periodontics. This general practice experience gives Dr. Goldberg a unique background for today’s presentation that involves a team approach in solving our patients’ needs.

Federal court rules dentists in Texas can advertise as ‘specialists’ in anesthesia, implantology, and non-American Dental Association (ADA) specialties. Arguments from associations representing non-ADA specialties prevail. Plaintiffs include American Academy of Implant Dentistry (AAID), American Society of Dental Anesthesiologists (ASDA), American Academy of Oral Medicine (AAOM), and American Academy of Orofacial Pain (AAOP).

Recently the United States District Court for the Western District of Texas, Austin Division, ruled that the Texas State Board of Dental Examiners could not prohibit two dentists, Drs. Jay E. Elliot and Monty Buck, from advertising themselves to the public as “specialists” in implant dentistry. Although Drs. Elliot and Buck had received credentials from the American Academy of Implant Dentistry (AAID), the Texas State Board, under Texas Administrative Code §108.54, had prohibited them from advertising as such because implantology was not among the nine officially recognized specialties of the American Dental Association (ADA). The court found §108.54 to be unconstitutional, as it violated the defendants’ First Amendment rights to engage in truthful, non-misleading commercial speech.

The ruling was particularly significant in that it potentially weakened the scope of authority held by the ADA, the United States’ largest and most prominent dental association. The Texas State Board had invoked the authority of the ADA to differentiate between legitimate and illegitimate specialties, but in his decision, Judge Sam Sparks found the dental board had an obligation to consider the authority of other associations representing non-ADA specialties.

In addition to Drs. Elliot and Buck, plaintiffs in the case were the AAID, the American Society of Dental Anesthesiologists (ASDA), the American Academy of Oral Medicine (AAOM), the American Academy of Orofacial Pain (AAOP), and three private dentists. The plaintiffs provided evidence that their represented groups required significant standards for membership credentialing, all seemingly equal to other ADA-specialty groups. Defendants in the case included members of the Texas State Board of Dental Examiners and the Texas Society of Oral and Maxillofacial Surgeons (TSOMS), which intervened as a party defendant. Another important issue considered in the ruling was the protection of public welfare. In this area, the court found: “The issue here is not whether the state is entitled to protect consumers from misleading information by conditioning specialty advertisements on meeting some uniform standards of competency; the issue is instead whether the standards chosen by the state are immunized from constitutional review. In this case, it is clear they are not.”

Michael Mashni, DDS, past president of the American Society of Dentist Anesthesiologists, who was active in a failed effort to pass dental anesthesiology as an ADA-recognized specialty within the ADA House of Delegates, issued this statement:

“As a dentist anesthesiologist, this decision allows me to advertise truthfully about my

Implant Esthetics:
New Approaches, Treatment Concepts & Material Selection

- Location To Be Determined -

SYNOPSIS: The demand for esthetic implant restorations has become a consistent theme in the dental literature and in daily clinical practice. Surgical concepts that are emphasized as important to the esthetic outcome include bone augmentation procedures prior to or in conjunction with implant placement, as well as additive soft tissue procedures such as connective tissue or dermal grafting to alter the biotype and tissue volume. Today’s surgical and transitional restorative strategies play equally important roles in post-extractive tissue guidance, and mandate precise surgical and restorative techniques. This presentation will explore direction changes in provisionalization techniques, standard impression and digital scanning as well as restorative material selection for esthetics and long-term stability.

LEARNING OBJECTIVES:

- Review the emerging hard and soft tissue enhancement procedures used today
- Review the role of immediate implant placement and restoration.
- Customized healing abutments
- Provisionalization: why is it so important?
- Conventional impressions vs. optimal scanning.
- The hype on cementations vs. screw-retention.
- Review today’s restorative material options.

Dr. Sonia Leziy and Dr. Brahm Miller received their dental degrees from McGill University. Dr. Leziy’s post-graduate degree in periodontics was completed at the University of British Columbia, Canada, and Dr. Miller completed his post-graduate prosthodontics certification at the Medical College of Virginia. They are associate clinical professors and sessional lecturers at the University of British Columbia, and mentor a Seattle Study Club chapter in Vancouver.

Drs. Leziy and Miller are members of the American Academy of Esthetic Dentistry and several periodontal and prosthodontic societies. They are also involved on several editorial boards including the Journals Spectrum Dialogue, the Journal of Esthetic and Restorative Dentistry, the Journal Teamwork and the Journal of Perio and Restorative Dentistry. They lecture extensively internationally, and have published on the subjects of advanced implant esthetics, periodontal plastic surgery, ceramics and restoration.

Dentistry Today recognizes each of them among the top 100 clinicians in CE in North America, they are recipients of the 2014 Saul Schluger Award. Dr. Leziy is also executive VP of Clinical Affairs for the Seattle Study Club. Drs. Leziy and Miller maintain a full-time private practice in the Imperio Group Dental Health Specialists in Vancouver, Canada.
training, education, and experience. Every state mandates additional post-graduate training to provide general anesthesia, yet restricts me from advertising as a specialist in anesthesia solely because the American Dental Association does not recognize anesthesia as a specialty. The recently formed American Board of Dental Specialties (ABDS) has approved anesthesia as a specialty based on training and testing validated by the American Dental Board of Anesthesiology. This decision will allow all dental specialties to advertise truthfully without limitations by the American Dental Association.”

Jacquelyn Stanfield, DDS, a director with Concerned Dentists of Texas, an advocacy group of dentists seeking protections for the public interest noted, “After reading the decision, I was surprised at the lack of expertise the defendants brought to the table. While it may help implant dentistry, et. al, in the short term, be careful what you ask for.”

About the author: Michael W. Davis, DDS, maintains a general dentistry practice in Santa Fe, New Mexico. He is currently chairperson for the Santa Fe District Dental Society peer-review. Dr. Davis is frequently consulted by the legal profession for expert witness work. He may be contacted at MWDavisDDS@comcast.net.

Editor’s note: The court ruling will take some time to completely understand its ramifications. The TSBDE will change its regulations regarding advertisements. It is not clear if the ruling only applied to advertisements regarding implant dentistry or dental anesthesiology or will this be applied to other areas such as cosmetic dentistry or family dentistry? Watch for events in the upcoming Texas Legislative Session to see how the State Board and the Texas Dental Association proceed. -MG
Cheers: To dentist Dr. Stephen Brogdon and staff.

As I was pulling birdseed sprouts from around my cactus, I stuck my finger on a thorn. Reflexively, I put my finger in my mouth, and wound up with stickers on my tongue and the roof of my mouth.

With his magnifying goggles, Dr. B. mercifully removed all the stickers.

You have retirement dreams. Make sure they’re protected.

What are your retirement dreams? Do you want to travel the world? Or perhaps you want to take a cross country road trip to visit children and grandchildren? Do you want to give life to new or old hobbies you didn’t have time for before retirement? Whatever your retirement dreams are, they require careful financial planning to achieve them. If you’ve already started saving, you’re on the right path to achieving your dreams.

But what if that path got derailed? Are your retirement dreams protected?

PROTECT YOUR RETIREMENT DREAMS WITH INCOME PROTECTION

You are likely preparing for your future retirement by saving a portion of your current income. If you became too sick or hurt to earn an income, how would you continue to save for retirement?

The reality is that illnesses and injuries are far more common than perhaps considered:

- Did you know that for every 17 working Americans, 1 is disabled?¹
- And did you know that 95% of those disabilities are due to illnesses, not injuries.²

To keep your retirement dreams on track, you need to protect your income. Income protection, or individual disability insurance, can help you protect your income in the event of a disability and may help you keep your retirement goals on track.

WHAT IS INCOME PROTECTION?

Income protection protects your income in the event of a disability by providing monthly benefits (like a paycheck) if you are unable to work and earn an income.

Certain income protection programs can help protect your retirement savings goals by paying monthly "paychecks" into a trust. The trust invests the funds according to your investment style and risk tolerance. At a set age, typically age 65 or 67, you will start receiving payments from the trust. The payments will continue until death or until the funds run out.

Don’t leave your retirement dreams unprotected. Protect them with income protection solutions. Contact us to learn more.
